DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE
The house is a 2-1/2 story, stucco-covered brick house with a large external chimney on the east end. The chimney rises two stories before narrowing to a stack. On either side are small windows, now 6/1 but undoubtedly 6/6 originally. The windows have plain, wooden, unmitered surrounds that are set flush with the present stucco wall surface. The chimney caps consist of three courses of brick, each projecting slightly beyond the one below. The facade of the main house is two bays; in the western bay of the second floor, an original window remains in place. The rest of the windows have been replaced with ones of a larger size. Across the facade is a simple boxed cornice. The profile of the water table can be seen in the stucco. There are two telescoping wings on the west end of the house. The first (now the center part of the house) is two stories with two bays. It has no cornice. An even more modern single story addition extends farther to the west: this addition has a battered base. A basement under the east and middle sections are separated by a fieldstone foundation wall, indicating that the house was indeed built in sections. The middle section has hand-hewn beams running perpendicular to the axis of the house. On the west wall of the addition, the beams have been altered; when the furnace was put in this end, a fireplace may have been removed and a flue used as a vent. Access to the eastern part of the basement is through the (locked) main floor. The interior has been completely remodelled. The oldest section of the house probably dates from the early nineteenth century.
